Head Coach Frank McGuire

For the past eight basketball seasons one magnetic figure has ıccessfully forged North Carolina into one of the most feared and ɔclaimed teams in the nation.

That would be Frank McGuire, the personable head coach of the ar Heels.

McGuire, a 46-year-old Irishman, born in Manhattan, was a great ıd famous coach before he moved to Carolina. He had previously ɔent five seasons directing St. John's, his alma mater, to 103 vic- ries against 35 defeats before he was lured south in 1952.

His early years here involved rebuilding after basketball at UNC ıd fallen behind that of its competitors, and the last five campaigns ave borne the fruits of those efforts: 103 triumphs versus only 22 efeats, bringing his eight season record to 145-45.

Thus, overall, McGuire's college teams have won 248 games, lost , for an impressive .735 winning percentage.

Following his graduation at St. John's in 1936, where he was a ree-sport star, McGuire coached from 1937-'47 at Xavier High chool in New York, which he had attended. There he showed his rst genius as a coach, his teams winning 126 while losing 39.

Four of McGuire's St. John's teams competed in the National vitational Tournament with a 5-2 record. Two entered NCAA com- etition, with his 1951-'52 club winning national runner-up honors.

However, it was one of his North Carolina teams that really hit e jackpot. This was the crackerjack squad of 1956-'57 which streaked rough 32 games undefeated, culminating in one newspaper banner- ne of "Those Wonderful Tar Heels Are National Champs." McGuire's iracle, they called it, and the team that produced it was a team at would inspire a song, poetry, romance and an acclaim the likes of nich had never been known in the sport.

McGuire thus became the first coach in history ever to take teams presenting two institutions to the NCAA finals, and was named the 57 "Coach of the Year" by all organizations bestowing such an nor. Previously, at St. John's, he was given that honor by the etropolitan Basketball Writers.

Frank Joseph McGuire, public spirited, debonair but with the mmon touch, is a first rate public relations ambassador for the niversity. He has received nation-wide recognition for his efforts improve crowd sportsmanship at games. He is famed as a speaker d a basketball lecturer. And recently he has distinguished himself an author, writing two books on coaching ("Offensive Basketball" d "Defensive Basketball") which have been widely acclaimed.

Frank is married to the former Patricia Johnson, and they have son and two daughters.

The McGuires, since last season, have built their own home in apel Hill, beautiful and spacious, with a private swimming pool. hile Frank is away much during the year, conducting clinics, speak- g and recruiting, his home is always hospitable with the "welcome" at always out. Friends come by in droves, especially after games, and e topic is always basketball.

Outlook: 1960-61

To reach the heart of the situation one must consider first the oot of one of the Carolina players before determining the kind of eam the Tar Heels will field in 1960-61.

Dick Kepley, big (6-9, 227 lbs.) pivot man, went up on the boards ith a teammate on the first day of practice last year and came own badly on his right foot. The ankle injury was so severe the ig fellow had to undergo an operation which sidelined him the ntire season. Kepley is back now. His repertoire of hooks, jumpers, nd pushers is still with him, but his ankle hasn't been fully tested nder the strains of running and jumping. And therein lies the key o the Tar Heels' hopes for the 1960-'61 campaign.

"Kepley's the key," acknowledges Coach Frank McGuire, with- ut reservation. "A good big man is important. If Kepley is com- letely healed, we can have a strong club."

McGuire makes this assertion "despite the fact we've lost five ettermen, three of whom were starters last year." As the Carolina oach is quick to point out, though, "We still have a strong starting ucleus of our top three—York Larese, Doug Moe, and Kepley. And ve have several very capable boys ready to fill the other two posi- ons."

Vying heatedly for those other two posts are "big men" Jim Iudock, Ken McComb, and Jim Donohue and "little men" Don Valsh, Larry Brown, and Yogi Poteet.

Donohue is a senior, while Hudock, Walsh, and Poteet are unors. Brown is a sophomore and was the high scorer on last year's reshman quint. Harry Jones, Marty Conlon, and Dieter Krause round ut the reserve strength.

Assets appear to rest with the team's overall size, its shooting ye, its defensive toughness, and its rebounding strength—all of which should be better this year," McGuire says. But here again, one ıust regard Kepley as the key to improvement.

The team will of course greatly miss the services of All-Ameri- an Lee Shaffer, Harvey Salz, and Ray Stanley—all starters in 9-60—along with reserves John Crotty and Grey Poole. Shaffer as the Atlantic Coast Conference's leading scorer and Player of he Year, and led the Tar Heels in rebounds. His clutch play, and alz's and Stanley's shooting and savvy, thus will be absent.

But one cannot suppress an expression of optimism with prime ll-American candidates York Larese and Doug Moe still on hand. oth performers experienced brilliant sophomore and junior years nd have made several second and third All-American teams already. oth were drafted by pro teams last spring in an unusual move hough Moe was actually ineligible for the draft). Thus, it is these vo highly skilled operatives, along with Kepley, who carry high the opes of Carolina basketball fortunes for 1960-61.

Reserve depth is the chief problem with which the team is faced, specially in the backcourt, where Larese is the only one with ex- ensive experience. The development of Walsh, Poteet, and Brown ill be important here.

"With the tough schedule we play this year, we would be rela- vely pleased to finish with an 18-6 record again this season," says IcGuire. The rugged December slate includes playing Kentucky, ansas State, and Kansas all within a week's time.

In Business 50 Years

With the close of the 1959-'60 season, North Carolina concluded its fiftieth year of basketball.

There was basketball activity at Carolina as far back as 1903, and Dr. Lawson obtained a rule book and fielded a team in 1906. However, it was not until 1911 that "Philly" Ritch and some of his Charlotte buddies introduced the game seriously.

Then it remained for the teeming Nineteen Twenties to bring Carolina recognition as a truly basketball-conscious school. The impetus for that was furnished by Major Fred Boye of World War I, who coached the Tar Heels in 1920 and 1921. The 1921 team won the State championship.

The 1922 quint captured the Southern Conference championship and the 1923 team annexed the South Atlantic title. Those teams had no regular coaches and were merely escorted to the wars by Coaches Bob and Bill Fetzer, experts in other sports but confessedly no basketball men. Norman Shepard was engaged to coach the 1924 team which swept through an entire season of nineteen games undefeated and then triumphed in four consecutive tournament games to take the conference title.

This team, captained by Winton Green, has since been recognized by the Helms Foundation as National Champions, and one of its members, clever Jack Cobb, has been acclaimed in the Helms Basketball Hall of Fame.

Both the Carmichaels, Billy and Cartwright, were superlative players of that era. Bill Dodderer, Monk McDonald and brother Sam, Bill Devin, Curtis (Sis) Perry and Carlyle Shepard were among the other greats. They played the slow, methodical game of the time, but they were skilled and graceful artists and their markmanship was superb. The conference tournaments were held in Atlanta and were gaudy spectacles.

Bo Shepard, brother of Norman and Carlyle, was one of the most successful of Carolina's coaches in the days that followed. There were great championship teams in the thirties when the McCachren brothers and a host of other stars came here from Charlotte. George Glamack, Jim Jordan and "Hook" Dillon became All-Americans of a still later era, with the 1946 team runner-up for the NCAA championship.

In the cycle since then basketball has been building back, first under the tutelage of Tom Scott, an imported Kansan, and now especially under Frank McGuire, an imported New Yorker. It was the genius McGuire, in fact, who generated the "McGuire Miracle" of 1957, the greatest team in Carolina history and one of the most astonishing the nation has ever seen. The "flaming five" of All-America Len Rosenbluth, All-America-to-be Pete Brennan, Joe Quigg, Tommy Kearns, and Bob Cunningham blazed through thirty-two games without defeat in a story of adventure and courage and dedication which led to the National Championship over Kansas.

McGuire teams have continued to be ranked with the best in the land, and last year's was no exception. Led by All-America Lee Shaffer, the Tar Heels were ranked among the top twenty of the nation's teams for the fifth year in a row. Over that same span, Carolina won 107 games while losing only 23.
